Deadline For President's Silver Message Nears Silver Issue Sharpens As Public Apathy Prevails

"CHAOS of thought and passion, lall confused," was Alexander Pope's evaluation of man; a better definition of the current silver crisis can hardly be found.

Although the silver factions proper, i.e., users and producers, are now in position for what appears to be the final and definitive round, either side has failed to arouse much public interest; moreover, the final outcome of the issue remains hopelessly clouded.

Public apathy, in spite of numerous spirited efforts, has thus far prevailed. American Smelting and Refining's Simon Strauss aptly summed the situation up during a recent CBS television interview; he felt that the issue was indifferent to many people, although "some were interested in maintaining silver in U.S. coinage." In all, a mild position for such grave an Dangerous oversimplifications of the problem do of course abound and became obvious when during the same television interview. Admiral Ramsey, representative of the Silver Users Association, flippantly reduced the silver crisis to: "the silver miners desire to see silver maintained in U.S. coinage at all cost, thus forcing the Treasury to remain a buyer of the met-

Last week an "in" New York columnist stated he knew for a fact that all silver would be eliminated from U.S. coinage. This same source with typical presumptuousness assured the readership there are now enough votes in Congress to legislate silver out of the coinage.

Similar sentiments are reflected in a recent editorial in the New Brunswick Daily Home News entitled "Keeping Coins in Circulation," the editorial was reprinted in the Congressional Record of March 31 at the request of Rep. E. J. Patten (D-NJ) and states: "The Government's long-expected announcement that it will cease using silver in its coinage and change to a cupro-nickel coinage next year will be along soon.

Many nations use cupro-nickel coins and they have proved entirely satisfactory. They are attractive and durable. They work in vending machines. And copper and nickel are relatively abundant while silver is becoming scarcer and scarcer.

As plans are made for the new coinage, Congress and the Treasury Department must make sure that they do not commit the errors of the past which have so aggravated the coin shortage for a year.

In order to keep speculation in and hoarding of the new coins at the lowest possible level, the new coins should bear no date and should be adopted as a semipermanent standard design, say for a 20-year period.

There is no logical reason for dating coins today. Our postage stamps are not required to bear dates. Neither does our currency bear a date of manufacture, but only dates of authorization.

Another sensible way of keeping hoarding and speculation at a minimum is to omit the mint mark from the new coins. The use of a special mark for mints other than Philadelphia results in an additional variety for collectors and speculators and hoarders to acquire. If all coins of each denomination are identical, hoarding can be cut in Another, and more drastic means of preventing hoarding, is to require the Federal Reserve banks to mix newly minted coins with circulated coins before distributing them to member banks. This makes quantities of new coins more difficult to acquire, and scratch marks from the mixing make the coins less desirable numismatically. In Britain during World War II, the minters intentionally discolored new coins to keep them in circulation rather than in hoards and collections.

The coming radical change in U.S. coinage will create massive problems, and every possible precaution should be taken to put the new coins into circulation and keep them there."

In Congress the silver question has been rather sketchily covered over the last three weeks. On March 30, however, Rep. William Bates (R-Mass.) made a serious plea for the total elimination of silver in U.S. coinage when he stated: "Several bills, mostly identical, have been introduced by our western colleagues calling for a cut in the silver content of our silver coins. It is said that the real purpose of these bills is to permit a rise in the market price above the present $1.29 level, and to keep the Treasury as a potential buyer in the market.

I am greatly concerned about the situation for two reasons: First, the existing coin shortage which affect everyone, and, second, the effect of an additional price rise on the users of silver, as well as the dealers and consumers of silver in my district.

There is not enough silver to continue its use in coins in any amount, however small. These bills which have been introduced call for a 30-percent silver content in our new coins. The only way even this amount can be continued in coins is to call in outstanding coins containing 90-percent silver, melt them down and issue the chean coins. Will the collectors, hoarders and speculators give up coins when the silver content is worth three times the face value as would be the case if these bills are passed?

The simple solution might well be to issue new coins made without silver which can be used alongside our present coins. This was done by Great Britain 20 years ago when they ran short of silver. The public can then do as it pleases with our present silver coins in circulation.

The market price for silver must not be permitted to rise above the $1.29 level. This price represents a 42-percent rise in the last 3 years, and was forced up to this level as a result of Government purchases in order to help the miners. It should now be used to stabilize the market as called for in the enactment of silver legislation in

I am particularly interested in sterling silverware which is manufactured in my district. During the past 15 years, the price of silver has doubled while the unit sales have been cut in half, with resultant unemployment. Higher prices will price this commodity out of the market which is, indeed, the case with sterling silver holloware now. The ability to purchase such items is now confined to a limited few.

I feel the proper amount of concern for the silver miners whose situation was clearly set forth by a sponsor of one of the silver bills in an address to the Colorado Mining Association on February 6, 1965, when he said: 'To briefly summarize, I would say that no matter what happens with regard to silver-coinage legislation, miners are going to enjoy unprecedented prosperity.'

I wish I could say the same for those who use silver.!

In support of his remarks, Rep. Bates cited an article written by Laurence D. Collins, headlined "Silver Coin Question: Old Problem Renewed" which appeared in

Survey Of U.S. Coinage Laws

Will 1965 Legislation Disrupt A 170-Year Tradition?

By: Christian F. Verbeke, F.R.N.S. Part I

FORTHCOMING silver legislation is likely to affect two distinct areas of U.S. currency history, the monetary standard itself and the coinage proper.

For example the 1963 Repeal of Silver Purchase Act legislation falls into the monetary standard category for it affects silver's status as an instrument of monetary backing. In contrast, the retention of "1964" on all coinage is a typical coinage law which does not modify monetary standards. The history of U.S. currency has likewise made distinctions between laws which affect the monetary standards, the coinage, and the paper currency.

Although still surrounded by considerable uncertainty, 1965 legislation will affect both the monetary standard and the coinage and conceivably by extension the paper currency. This makes 1965 a crucial year in the history of U.S. currency — a year when history will be written.

Laws affecting monetary standards and the paper currency have drastically changed the entire American monetary system since 1792; the latest such move, the 1965 repeal of 25-percent bank gold reserves for example, is an outstanding example of this evolution.

U. S. coinage, however, in its present form is virtually an uninterrupted and unchanged tradition since 1792, this makes the forthcoming changes i.e. reduction or elimination of silver content particularly significant, moreover these events will open an entire new chapter in the history of U. S. metallic currency.

To acquire a thorough understanding of the current coinage situation necessitates a clear grasp of the laws which hitherto have affected U. S. metallic currency. Hence this review of coinage laws excerpted from "Coins and Currency of the U.S." released by the Secretary of the Treasury in 1947.

History of U.S. Coins The Act of April 2, 1792, established a mint, and authorized the following coins: Gold — eagles (each of the value of ten units or dollars); half-eagles, and quarter eagles; Siver-dollars, half-dollars. quarter-dollars, dimes, and halfdimes; Copper—cents, and halfcents. The weight and fineness of the coins were specified, and the weight of the smaller coins of each kind made exactly proportional to that of the larger. The mint was to strike into coins of the same metal, free of expense, all of the gold or silver which any person brought to it. The fine content of gold and silver coins was to be alloyed with stated proportions of base metals.

Gold Coins

As provided in the Act of April 2, 1792, the eagle, of the value of $10, became the standard denomination of gold coin. Eagles and half-eagles ($5) were first coined.

followed by quarter-eagles ($2.50). The eagle had a weight of 270 grains, 0.916-2/3 fine, and so contained 247.5 grains of pure gold. The Act of June 28, 1834, reduced the weight to 258 grains, 0.899225 fine, and so made the pure gold content 232.0 grains. The Act of January 18, 1837, changed the fineness to 0.900, without change in weight, which raised the pure gold content to 232.2 grains. Double-eagles ($20), and one-dollar pieces were authorized by the Act of March 3, 1849, and three-dollar pieces by the Act of February 21, 1853. One-dollar and three-dollar pieces were discontinued by the Act of September 26, 1890; quarter-eagles were discontinued by the Act of April 11, 1930.

Gold coins of the different denominations were of proportionate weight and the same fineness. All were legal tender in all payments when not below the standard weight and "limit of tolerance" prescribed by law, and when below such weight and tolerance were legal tender in proportion to their actual weight. The total gold coinage of the mints of the United States since 1792 has been $4,526,218,477.50.

Standard Silver Dollars
The silver dollar was adopted in 1792 as one of the two monetary units of the United States, and its metal content was then fixed at 371.25 grains of pure, or 416 grains of standard silver (0.8924 fine). In 1837 the standard for both gold and silver coins was made 0.900 fine, and the weight of the silver dollar was fixed at 412.5 grains, its pure silver content remaining as originally provided at 371.25 grains. The weight and fineness have not since been changed.

A summary of the principal acts affecting the silver dollar, and the action taken under each, follows in chronological order:

Act of April 2, 1792: (1) Authorized coinage of the silver dollar (of the value of Spanish milled dollar) against the deposit of silver and fixed its weight at 371-4/16 grains of pure silver or 416 grains of standard silver; (2) fixed the standard for silver coins as 1485/1664 (0.8924) fine; (3) fixed the coinage ratio of gold and silver as 1 to 15; (4) provided for free coinage; and (5) declared silver dollars (and all other coins authorized) lawful tender. Under this Act, 1,440,517 silver dollars were coined, all for private ac-

Act of June 28, 1834, changed the weight and fineness of the gold dollar, establishing the coinage ratio of gold and silver as 1 to 16.002.

Act of January 18, 1837, fixed the standard as 0.900 fine for both gold and silver coins, and changed the weight of the silver dollar to 412-1/2 grains of standard silver (the fine content remaining fixed at 371.25 grains). The coinage ratio of gold and silver under the law was established as 1 to 15.988. Under this Act, 6,590,721 silver dollars were coined.

Act of February 12, 1873, revising the coinage laws, omitted provision for the coinage of the silver dollar and authorized coinage of the trade dollar.

Act of February 28, 1878. (Bland-Allison Act) restored coinage of the standard silver dollar (but only on Government account) of the weight of 412.5 grains of standard silver 0.900 fine (371.25 grains of pure silver) as provided in the Act of January 18, 1837, and declared all such dollars (and all those previously coined) to be legal tender except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract. The Act also directed the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase each month, at the market price thereof, not less than $2,-000,000 nor more than $4,000,000 worth of silver bullion and to coin the bullion so purchased into standard silver dollars.

Act of July 14, 1890, (Sherman Act) repealed the provisions of the Act of February 28, 1878, which required the monthly purchase and coinage of silver bullion; and directed purchase of silver, to total 4,500,000 ounces of bullion per month at the market price thereof, not exceeding one dollar for 371.25 grains of pure silver, provided for its coinage into standard silver dollars, and authorized the issue of Treasury notes (called Treasury notes of 1890) in payment for the silver bullion purchased.

Act of March 3, 1891, (also Act of March 3, 1887) authorized coinage from trade dollar bullion and trade dollars then in the Treasury. Under these Acts, 5,078,472 standard silver dollars were coined.

Act of November 1, 1893, repealed the purchasing clause of the Act of July 14, 1890.

Act of June 13, 1898, directed coinage into standard silver dollars of all the remaining bullion in the Treasury purchased under the Act of July 14, 1890.

Act of April 23, 1918. (Pittman Act) authorized the conversion of not exceeding 350,000,000 standard silver dollars into bullion and its sale, or use for subsidiary silver coinage, and directed purchase of domestic silver for recoinage of a like number of dollars. Under this Act. 270,232,722 standard silver dollars were converted into bullion (259,121,554 for sale to Great Britain at $1 per fine ounce, plus mint charges and 11,111,168 for subsidiary silver coinage), the equivalent of about 209,000,000 fine ounces of silver. Between May 1920 and June 1923, under the Act, the same quantity of silver was purchased from the output of American mines at a fixed price of $1 per ounce, from which 270,-232,722 standard silver dollars were recoined. Deliveries of a small amount of these purchases were not completed until July 1927; recoinage operations were not finished until April 1928. Silver certificates equal in amount to the standard silver dollars converted into bullion were withdrawn from circulation and replaced by Federal Reserve bank notes. Thereafter as silver was purchased under the Act and coined into standard silver dollars, the Federal Reserve bank notes were replaced by Silver certificates.

Act of May 12, 1933 (Title III, included the first specific legislative provisions dealing with acquisitions of foreign silver by the Treasury. It authorized the acceptance, during the ensuing six months, of silver tendered by foreign governments in payment of indebtedness due to the United States Government within the six months period, the silver to be valued at not in excess of 50 cent per ounce. Silver certificates could be issued up to the total number of dollars for which silver was accepted in payment of debts; the silver so accepted could at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury be coined into standard silver dollars (and subsidiary coins) to meet redemption demands for silver certificates issued under this authority. This action was taken, in part, to bolster the price of silver which had fallen drastically in 1932.

Act of June 19, 1934, (Silver Purchase Act) authorized and directed the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase silver, with the objective of maintaining onefourth of the monetary value of the monetary stocks of the United States in silver. Silver certificates were required to be issued up to at least the cost value, and might be issued up to the full monetary value of silver so purchased. The Secretary of the Treasury was given authority to coin standard silver dollars for the redemption of all silver certificates.

Under this Act foreign silver and domestic silver could be purchased at a price not to exceed its monetary value ($1.29 + per fine ounce), except that the price paid for silver situated in the continental United States on May 1, 1934, could not exceed 50 cents per fine ounce.

Act of July 6, 1939, directed mints to receive for coinage into standard silver dollars any newly mined domestic silver mined subsequent to July 1, 1939, deducting 45 percent for seigniorage; thus the return to depositors of silver under this Act was 71.11 + cents per fine ounce.

Act of July 31, 1946, amended the Act of July 6, 1939, and provided for the acquisition of domestic silver mined after July 1, 1946, and tendered to any United States mint within one year after the month in which the ore from which it is derived was mined, deducting 30 percent for seigniorage instead of 45 percent. Hence, the return to the depositor provided the Boston Globe on February 28, 1965. Mr. Collins writes: "In 1896 William Jennings Bryan thundered his famous challenge to the enemies of unlimited coinage of silver: 'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'

For his oratory Bryan won the first of three Presidential nominations, and mining interests of the West won a champ-

Today mineowners still have a cause, but their only champion is the American Mining Congress, and its oratory is considerably less eloquent than Bryan's.

What is their cause? The coinage of silver again. Only today they're not fighting for unlimited coinage of silver. They'll settle for the Treasury leaving any amount of silver in coins.

But the Treasury has its problems. It just doesn't have enough silver to go on minting coins with the prevailing silver content. Half-dollars, quarters, and dimes are 90 percent silver. Too much, the Treasury

They're not the only ones either. The Silver Users Association, representing the silver users in industry and the arts, claims silver coinage only serves to subsidize the mineowners by creating an unnecessarily large demand for the limited amount of silver available. Industry and the arts consumed 123 million ounces of silver in 1964, and their need for the metal continues to increase.

Supply and demand. There's the rub. In 1964 total free world production of silver amounted to 215 million ounces. The U.S. Treasury alone used 203 million ounces of silver for coinage. In order to do this the Treasury was forced to take a sizable bite out of its silver stocks. But how long can it do this?

Because of new coin production and redemption of silver certificates by the public, U.S. silver reserves dropped by about 23 percent in 1964. That amounts to 364,500,000 ounces.

The chronic coin shortage is, of course, a key factor in the current silver crisis. Coin-hoarding, once considered a mark on thrift, is now an object of the Treasury's wrath.

Is hoarding really that big a problem? Apparently. Take the Kennedy half dollar. During 1964, 201 million were minted. They contained 36 percent of the silver used by the Treasury that year.

Have you received one in change yet? A great many Americans haven't because too many of those who have are keeping them. Kennedy half dollars were not meant to be commemorative coins. They were meant to circulate. They don't.

Almost everyone concerned, even the mine owners, agrees that the silver content of U.S. coinage must be reduced. But it is up to the Treasury to make the difficult decision of just how big any cut will be. And then it has to convince Congress.

The Treasury plans to announce its decision in April. It had originally planned to reveal it this month but was forced to postpone the announcement because of incomplete studies.

The going price for silver today is $1.29 a troy ounce. But this price does not reflect the reality of supply and demand in the silver market. The Treasury has artificially imposed that price merely by making silver available from its own stocks and pegging it at $1.29 an

Why $1.29? A silver dollar contains 0.77 troy ounces of silver. Anyone wanting to cash in a $1 certificate for a dollar's worth receives a cartwheel 0.77 ounces. At that exchange rate a full ounce figures out to 1.29. Now if the Treasury simply ury's supply of silver dropped and demand steadily increased, the $1.29 price tag would soon be meaningless.

Enter the speculator. In anticipation of higher prices for silver, hoarding of our present coinage with its 90-percent silver content would be inevitable. Dwindling silver stocks, renewed shortage of coins.

Shortly after World War II Britain was forced with a similar silver shortage. It simply stopped minting coins with silver. The U.S. Treasury is considering this solution, too. But, of course, the mineowners are violently opposed.

Trade Dollars

The trade dollar was authorized by the Act of February 12, 1873. Its weight was fixed at 420 grains of standard silver (378 grains of pure silver), and free coinage was provided. Trade dollars were intended for export to the Orient in exchange for goods. To make them acceptable as a substitute for the Mexican and Spanish silver dollars, they were made slightly (Continued on Page 13)

Tradition

The trade dollar was originally made legal tender in the United States in sums not exceeding $5 (the same as subsidiary silver coin), but the legal tender quality was withdrawn by the Joint Resolution of July 22, 1876, and coinage was restricted to such amount as the Secretary of the Treasury should "deem sufficient to meet the export demand." The Act of March 3, 1887, discontinued the coinage of trade dollars, provided for their retirement and ordered their recoinage into standard silver dollars or subsidiary silver coin. For six months after the passage of that Act they were exchangeable dollar for dollar for standard silver dollars or subsidiary coin. The Act of March 3, 1891, directed the Secretary of the Treasury to coin into standard silver dollars the trade dollar bullion and trade dollars then in the Treasury.

Trade dollars in the amount of 35,965,924 had been coined. Under the Act of 1887, 7,689,036 were redeemed at face value, and from the resulting bullion $2,668,674.30 in subsidiary sil-(Continued on Page 18)

MARKET SUMMARY

April 7, 1965

By Russell Brown

NTERMEDIATE silver continued its upward path this week with the quarters and halves in extremely heavy demand. Selective buying was also felt in Jefferson nickels and Morgan dollars.

The Franklin series is undergoing a tremendous wave of buying with constantly increasing prices in many issues. Particularly affected are the semi key dates and the late date Phillies. The master keys are not in heavy demand; witness the twenty five dollar decline by the 1949-P. Heaviest bidding is taking place in the 1948-D's and 1960-P's.

While the 1949-P half was going down, the 1949-P quarter was going up by the same amount. And it was joined by eighteen other issues in advance while only four declines were noted. The buying in quarters still centers around the key rolls in the short set. There is also interest in the late date issues which are still near face.

Morgan dollars were requested in some quantity over the week with quite a few bids at respectable levels. Furchases of the 1897-O drove the price of that issue up twenty dollars. Advances nearly equalled declines and several bag lot sales were recorded.

Meanwhile, Peace dollars continued downward with eight major price corrections. All were in the neighborhood of ten dollars except for the 1927-P and 1928-P, each of which declined fifty dollars or more.

Jefferson nickels were strictly mixed with buying going on at ask levels on some issues while selling was taking place at bid prices on others. As a result, there were several rather large price changes, in fact, four in two digits. For the first time in quite a while we noted a bid on the 1939-D roll. But the 1950-D was seldom requested.

Cents and dimes were silent and unheard from during the week. The only action in the dimes took place when several dealers listed a goodly number of rolls for sale at Pace bid from last week. Most were sold. The only price changes in the dimes of consequence saw the 1942-S rise five dollars while the 1949-D declined a like amount.

Lincoln cents matched the dimes in quietly moving lower. Declines exceeded advances by 26 to six but the largest decline was only five dollars.

Proof sets lost most of the small gains scored last week and as a result returned to their first-of-the-year levels. The only losses of any magnitude were three dollars by the 1940 set and five dollars by the 1951 issue.

In the circulated market, there was much offering and bidding but few sales took place and few prices changed. Some of the silver issues rose slightly, but were partially offset by a few small losses.

In the Canadian market, the early proof like sets continue to be purchased at higher prices while the late date sets go downward. The 1965 set is now offered at $5.25 on occasions. It appears that there will be between three and four million of these sets made.

The Market Opinion

We received a letter in the mail yesterday giving us a real hard time for our apparent dislike of Morgan dollars. Particular issue was taken with the use of the term "junk" in defining those select dates which appear to be, at best, furnace candidates. Possibly the term is strong and, in the future, we promise not to use it again. But as to there being any numismatic value to this group of some dozen dates, well, we reserve the right to retain our oft expressed opinion.

Inside word says that the major dealers are adopting a hands off policy on the late date Canadian sets so that the prices will settle to a realistic level. This level is currently predicted, for the '65's, at $4.75. At that point, a promotion may be undertaken if there seems to be a chance to acquire a large number of sets and move them up by several dollars.

We are removing a few rolls from our circulated price lists and adding a few others. The removals are rolls which are selling virtually at face value. They are the 1939-P, 1947-S and 1951-D nickels, 1949-P and 1952-S dimes, and the 1950-P, 1950-D and 1951-S halves. Added were the 1948-D, 1956-P and 1958-P halves.

BU Roll Prices as of Wednesday, April 7, 1965

These bid and asked prices, from the United States Coin Exchange Inc., do not necessarily represent actual transactions. They are a guide to the range within which these coins could have been sold (indicated by the "bid") or bought (indicated by the "asked") at the time of compilation. Price changes are obtained by comparison of weekly bid prices.

Prices are wholesale quotations compiled from the United States Coin Exchange teletype system which serves 285 coin dealers across the country.
